Claire Dacey

is an emerging singer-songwriter, song collector, and multi-instrumentalist in the finest traditions of folk. Her rich, clear voice is her primary instrument, often drawing comparisons to Joan Baez and Kate Wolf. To this she adds her simple, sensitive guitar work, as well as fiddle tunes and airs on the violin and viola. Claire's performances offer a chance to slow down, heal, and reconnect with things that nourish us.

"The first time I heard Claire sing, I got goose-bumps as I was reminded of the late, great Kate Wolf. Claire's voice is clear as a bell, melodic as a thrush, and her heart is as wide as the open sky. Like Kate, Claire's music embodies a soul deeply connected to the natural world. Her voice comforts me, and she sings with a heart that radiates calm and joy. Her medicine is something we could all use more of these days." -- Erica Wheeler, Singer-Songwriter & Workshop Presenter

"Claire's amazing PLACE project presentations in 2008 about the geology, history, and development of Putney, combined with her amazing voice, attracted hundreds." --Stuart Strothman, PHS President
